Eirini Michali is an associate in the Environmental and Indigenous practice group at Davies Ward Phillips & Vineberg LLP.

Prior to joining Davies, she practised litigation and administrative law at the Montréal office of a regional law firm. There, she assisted organizations in preventing and responding to events of sexual violence, discrimination and psychological violence, and she conducted administrative investigations into such matters. She also advised and represented professional orders and other regulatory bodies in disciplinary matters before various administrative and judicial tribunals.

Eirini is trained in the trauma-informed approach to investigations of sexual violence. Furthermore, she is accredited by the Barreau du Québec to conduct workplace psychological harassment investigations.
